

Re: Computer going offline for no apparent reason

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2005-12/msg09946.html>

- From: "Ferdy" <fredjr1@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sun, 25 Dec 2005 13:20:04 -0600
-

I connect using dsl, ISP is BellSouth. Connected through their dsl modem, and a wireless router. Modem is a Speedtouch Home and the router is a Netgear. Extremely fast connection (when it is connected :-()), download speed around 1200KB.

"Alias" <[aka@\[notme\]maskedandanonymous.org](mailto:aka@[notme]maskedandanonymous.org)> wrote in message news:erOAYIYCGHA.2320@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

> Ferdy wrote:

>

>> Group,

>>

>> My internet explorer has taken to going offline for no apparent reason.

>> When refreshing a page a dialogue box appears and says "No internet connection available" with an option to "Work offline" or "Try again".

>> When

>> the try again box is clicked, I am immediately reconnected and things go along as normal. This is a recent occurrence.

>>

>> What setting could be causing this?

>>

>> I have tried changing firewall preferences, checked Microsoft >> anti-spyware, >> checked ZoneAlarm, and AVG. None seem to have any preferences or >> possible

>> options that would cause this.

>>

>> TIA for any help. Also, suggestions for posting to a more appropriate >> newsgroup would be welcomed.

>>

>> Ferdy

>>

>>

>>

>

> It would help a lot if you could tell us if you connect to the Internet > via cable, dsl or dial up. And, if you want to help us even more, you > might want to reveal the name of your ISP.

>

> Alias

.

- References:

- ◆ Computer going offline for no apparent reason

- ◇ From: Ferdy

- ◆ Re: Computer going offline for no apparent reason

- ◇ From: Alias

- Prev by Date: Re: Can't remove a program

- Next by Date: Re: XP / Vista

- Previous by thread: Re: Computer going offline for no apparent reason

- Next by thread: Re: XP / Vista

- Index(es):

- ◆ Date

- ◆ Thread