

Re: Windows ignoring virtual memory settings

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2006-01/msg10688.html>

- From: "Gerry Cornell" <gcjc@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Wed, 25 Jan 2006 10:11:26 -0000
-

Are you clicking on SET after making your selection?

<http://aumha.org/win5/a/xpvm.htm>

--

Hope this helps.

Gerry

~~~~

FCA

Stourport, England

Enquire, plan and execute

~~~~~

"Khrillian" <Khrillian@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
<news:1D83595E-FDDC-4E91-9423-3982FADE950B@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>

> Maybe I need to restate....

>

> I have a 56GB singly partitioned hard drive with 16.3GB free space > available.

> I want to set up the pagefile at 1024MB.

>

> The configuration screen says this:

>

> Drive: C Paging file size: 1024-1024

>

> x Custom size

> Initial size 1024

> Maximum size 1024

>

> Minimum allowed 2

> Recommended 1534 MB

> Currently allocated 1535MB

>

>

> If i disable the pagefile, restart, then set it up as i want it, making no

Re: Windows ignoring virtual memory settings

- > other changes, it is resized by windows XP to 1535MB after the computer is
- > restarted or put into sleep or hibernate mode. I do not want this to
- > happen.
- > Is there a way to 'convince' windows not to alter the size of the
- > pagefile,
- > once it is created at 1024MB?

• References:

- ◆ Re: Windows ignoring virtual memory settings
◇ From: Gerry Cornell

- Prev by Date: Re: CD Writing Wizard Error
- Next by Date: Re: Cloning OEM XP PC's?
- Previous by thread: Re: Windows ignoring virtual memory settings
- Next by thread: Re: Windows ignoring virtual memory settings
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread