

Re: How can I put the pagefile.sys on an external usb hard disk?

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2006-01/msg13402.html>

- From: "Yves Leclerc" <yvesleclercNOSPAM@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Tue, 31 Jan 2006 12:48:38 -0500
-

On 31/01/2006 "mikeemil" <mikeemil@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:
>XP Pof. ignores the settings and put it on internal hard disk. I have not >boot from internal hard disk. C: is a primary and the active partition on the >external storage but XP put the pagefile.sys on D:. This is the first >partition of my internal hard disk.
>I want sent the internal storage back to the vendor, so it would be great if >there is a possibility.

The pagefile needs to always have access to a storage system and usually must follow where XP is installed. Since you can not install XP onto a USB or Firewire drive, then NO, you can not place the pagefile on an external USB drive.

--

Y.

.

- Prev by Date: Re: Too Many Processes!
- Next by Date: Re: Boy is this a weird problem
- Previous by thread: Re: How can I put the pagefile.sys on an external usb hard disk?
- Next by thread: Re: Desktop folder in root of c: drive
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread