

Re: I want to legitimise my XP

If you ever feel your message as presented by you can stand on its own, you will let it.

I do. I have the website to prove it.

Until then in desperation you need to shore it up with irrelevant attacks so typical of you.

Again, you feel attacked! Silly Juppy! I'm not in any way shape or form attacking you. Your persecution complex is totally transparent, and you should consider see a professional about it.

"Really? Why? Because validation failed? LOL!"
The OP did not say but you are free to assume validation is the cause if you need.

Now asking questions is an assumption?! Silly Juppy! Can you not see that it is you that is doing the twist? Juppy Checker!

The OP has been given information to assist in finding the facts. You should read what was written again for the first time. We do not know who the thief is. You are assuming without the facts, so typical of Kurt
"What may have happened..." and many other possible options. Until we hear from the OP, I am not going to make assumptions.

LOL! Well I know I'm not gonna assume that the OP pirated anything, unless he confesses to it. I presume people to be INNOCENT, until proven otherwise, unlike MS's copy-protection schemes that presumes just the opposite!

You also assume it is not broken, we do not know either way from what the OP has stated. Again more from Kurt to do nothing other to suit your anti Microsoft agenda.

Really how? I don't understand what you are alluding to.

"And how do you know the seller didn't scam you?"
Irrelevant and typical of your diversions yet again.

Re: I want to legitimise my XP

Re: I want to legitimise my XP

No it is not. "I pay for the products I use when the seller determines the price."

How do you know that what you paid for is in actual FACT legit?

You don't. So who is doing the assuming?

I said "OP bought copyrighted material" then you said "Changing your tune to suit your need to cover up your hypocrisy!", not at all. It was a mistake in wording on my part and you know it from past posts of mine. The OP bought a license, whether it is valid or not will not be known without more facts from the OP.

No it is just another example you EULA uber alles idiots changing your tune to suit your present needs. Your hypocrisy knows no limit.

I don't want anyone to be victimized. No where did I suggest as much.

"If the installed Windows is not legitimate integrity suggests the OP make it right."

So your integrity suggests that the victim of a software pirate be victimized again to make it right for MS!

But your twisting to suit your agenda seems to need it.

Your words don't need to be twisted, they are plain for all to read.

If the OP bought what the seller did not have for sale, the OP may need to buy it again.

LOL! There you go again, wanting to victimize the victim a second time. GO AFTER THE REAL PIRATE, THE SELLER!

If the sale was legitimate, another fix is in order. Similar when stolen property is bought, the buyer needs to return the property and go after the seller.

Re: I want to legitimise my XP

Re: I want to legitimise my XP

LOL! Shouldn't the same principle apply to MS, since they are claiming to be a victim too, and the pirate is the seller?

Silly Juppy! I do so love your double standards. MS need not prove anything and can go after the victim of the software pirate, while the victim needs to go after the software pirate, but MS does not!

But as I have already stated, we lack the facts to determine if it is legitimate or not.

Yep. So MS deserves absolutely nothing until it proves otherwise. The OP owes MS nothing!

Post back Kurt only to feed your ego since that is all your post will achieve.

ROFL! Please explain how my ego is feed by replying to some one's post in reply to me? Oh! Your ego is fed that way, so you assume mine is too! Silly Juppy!

"kurttrail" <dontemailme@xx> wrote in message news:uVuRDufRGHA.1204@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

Jupiter Jones [MVP] wrote:

Attacking others while providing nothing of value, so typical of you
Kurt.

ROFL! You feel attacked by someone pointing out your hypocrisy? How typical of you!

The OP has reason to believe his is not legitimate.

Really? Why? Because validation failed? LOL!

Except for you true MS-diehard, everyone else has figured out that MS's validation BS is flawed. It has so many false positives, while it doesn't catch many truly pirated installs.

Re: I want to legitimise my XP

Re: I want to legitimise my XP

If the OP determines it is not legitimate, integrity suggests the OP make it right.

Nope, my integrity is an extension of my common sense, and that says you don't screw around with what ain't broken! Why? Because you are ten times more like to break what wasn't broken in the first place.

You may choose not to buy what you use, but others have integrity.

The OP did buy it! What may have happened is that the seller didn't. MS needs to go have the true theif not the victim! THAT'S WHAT INTEGRITY DEMANDS!

I pay for the products I use when the seller determines the price.

And how do you know the seller didn't scam you? Or they were scammed by the people that sold it to them?

With a crime, there must be an intent to commit one. The OP had no intent on being scammed.

I never said groceries are the same as copyrighted material, but your agenda again needs to change the meaning so you can make a point.

"What the local store does with the $ paid by the OP is not relevant any more than what the local grocery store does with your $ you pay for food."

OP bought copyrighted material, and it ain't the same as food.

HENCE COPYRIGHT LAW doesn't cover food!

Both are purchased prior to use.

Re: I want to legitimise my XP

LOL! I thought software was licensed? Changing your tune to suit your need to cover up your hypocrisy! IOW using one hypocrisy to cover up another!

That is really a true demonstration of YOUR INTEGRITY! ROFL!

So typical of Kurt, not understanding why people need to pay for products they use.

The OP did, what is in question is whether the person or shop that sold it to the OP did pay for it!

You dislike of Microsoft is obvious as is your lack of concern for people.

I blame the real thieves and conartists, not their victims. You & MS want to victimize the victims yet again!

It is yours & MS's lack of concern for people that have already been victimized that is so damned obvious!

You pretend to care for people only as a means of your constant attack on Microsoft and others otherwise you would not hope for harm to those you have not met..

LOL! At least I don't want a victim to be victimized twice over the same copy of software.

"kurttrail"
<dontemailme@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
news:u1Ep5HfRGHA.4900@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

Jupiter Jones [MVP] wrote:

Do not confuse "mad" with integrity.

Re: I want to legitimise my XP

Exactly! MS has no integrity!

If the installed Windows is not legitimate integrity suggests the OP make it right.

No. What MS calls legit isn't necessarily legit. Like their BS PA message about how XP has been installed too many times, when it can be installed as many times as one wants or needs.

Seems integrity is lost on MS, as they have left this message as a part of PA since XP was in BETA!

What the local store does with the $ paid by the OP is not relevant any more than what the local grocery store does with your $ you pay for food.

Copyrighted material is not the same as physical groceries, and you know it. Seems your integrity is pretty lacking too!

--

Peace!

Kurt

Self-anointed Moderator

XX

<http://XX>

"Trustworthy Computing" is only another example of an Oxymoron!

"Produkt-Aktivierung macht frei"

There she goes again! Silly Juppy cannot help herself and has to continually demonstrate her lack of integrity! I wonder what she say if I did the same thing to MS's words, and change them without their permission. I'm sure she would wet her panties out of sheer anger!

Re: I want to legitimise my XP

Re: I want to legitimise my XP

ROFL!

--

Peace!

Kurt

Self-anointed Moderator

microscum.pubic.windowsexp.gonorrhea

<http://microscum.com/mscommunity/index.php?showtopic=3>

"Trustworthy Computing" is only another example of an Oxymoron!

"Produkt-Aktivierung macht frei"

.