So my friend told me about msconfig because it was taking forever for my computer to load up because all my programs were loading up.

i have no sound, my computer no longer recognizes my digital camera. i still have internet and everything. after i restart my computer not all of the same old stuff comes up.

i tried researching online but i'm not sure what to search. i read somewhere to check the device manager, only nothing comes up in my device manager.

i tried to do a system restore. and yet again...there is no restore points.

anyone have any clue what could've went wrong?

thank you in advance.
