

Re: logging on/off

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2006-06/msg00355.html>

- From: "Mike Flanagan" <mflan1066(at)hotmail.com>
 - Date: Thu, 1 Jun 2006 16:35:30 -0400
-

Roberto, Thanks for that it copied the file ok but still the same.....exited, rebooted and still the logging on then less than a second logging off.....thanks for trying.

Mike

"Roberto le Corneille" <qui@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message <news:pan.2006.06.01.09.42.41.261041@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx>

On Thu, 01 Jun 2006 04:56:18 -0400, Mike Flanagan wrote:

OK i have this PC here was loaded with all sorts of spyware/malware etc. Took 35 mins to get up and running.....installed ewido ran it, it removed say 40 instances of the garbage. now when i try to reboot the system it get to the log on screen(this is new) as it booted to the desktop before. when i click on the user name (this is in safe mode also and with either admin or user name) it starts to load user the personal settings and the within 1sec. it goes to logging off.....any ideas?

There is a certain type of spyware that can cause this symptom, try this:

1. boot using your XP CD
2. Enter recovery console
3. at the command prompt go to c:\windows\system32
4. type: copy userinit.exe wsaupdater.exe
5. exit and reboot. Login
6. DON'T STOP – run regedit
7. Find the Userinit key in:
HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\SOFTWARE\Microsoft\Windows\Windows NT\Current Version\Winlogon 8. Modify the entry: C:\WINDOWS\System32\wsaupdater.exeso that it reads C:\Windows\System32\userinit.exe

See microsoft kb article 892893 for more details

rgds
Roberto

Re: logging on/off