

Re: Help! Strange service discovered – Kmfsvsr

---

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2006-06/msg03208.html>

---

- From: "MAP" <mikepawlak2REM@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Fri, 9 Jun 2006 09:51:36 -0400
-

mikec wrote:

Hi Everyone,

Hey, I was just wondering, I discovered something a little disconcerting... I just ran services.msc to see what's running on my system and I noticed something really strange. There seems to be a service listed called "Kmfsvsr." There's no description and it's listed as disabled. There is also nothing listed in the "Path to executable."

What's even stranger (at least to me) is that when I click the "Log On" tab, "This account:" is selected along with a password filled in. However, there is nothing under "This account:" and the Hardware Profile (Profile 1) is disabled.

To make things worse, I Googled Kmfsvsr with zero results. I have to conclude that it must be a virus or trojan or something, however, my virus scanner finds nothing. I even ran Rootkit Revealer and it didn't flag anything related.

Any comments or ideas?

Mike

Have you installed Kazaa?

--

Mike Pawlak