My computer is both virus and malware free. I went to that web site and clicked on the file, but it said that it was in use by another program.

When I log in on my main account (the one that I created when I first started Windows XP) and right-click the desktop, then choose 'properties', In the 'display properties' window, the 'Theme' tab isn't there. However, when I log on to a Backup account I created just in case my main account messed up majorly, the 'Theme' tab is there. Is there any way to fix this?
