Hi Rabih,
right click My Computer and select "Disconnect network drive" click on the connection you are trying to access and click OK.

See the following article for additional info:
How to connect and disconnect a network drive in Windows XP

Hi All,

Using Windows XP...I've accessed another computer on the local network...I was prompted to enter a user ID and password...I did so, and I've checked the save password option...now I want to access this same computer using a different user ID...my problem is that I'm not being prompted anymore to enter a different user ID...so how can I access this computer using a different user?

any hint will be very appreciated
Regards
Rabih
