

Re: block remote desktop

---

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2006-11/msg09170.html>

---

- From: "Master Programmer" <master\_programmer@xxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: 28 Nov 2006 00:22:40 -0800
-

I suggest fabricating some evidence that they have been accessing pornography whilst at work. You can then use the bogus evidence to have them dismissed.

Steve Ray Irwin

Rob wrote:

I have a user that is connecting to a remote desktop in order to access websites from home that we normally block here at work.. I have blocked the IP they are connecting to but in case they have another ip which is likely, I want to just block outgoing requests all together. blocking 3389 doesn't work.