I suppose, if I save it to c:\boot.ini, it might work. It did work and the changes are there;only now System Configuration utility has encountered encountered a problem and must close.

...adding the following entry
to the boot.ini file that you listed, using Notepad as your editor:

```
multi(0)disk(0)rdisk(1)partition(1)windows=
"Microsoft Windows 2000"
/fastdetect

Since your Win2K is probably in a folder named
"WINNT", the 2nd entry should instead be:

multi(0)disk(0)rdisk(1)partition(1)\WINNT=
"Microsoft Windows 2000" /fastdetect

You are correct about the installation process. Would you instruct me on how to edit Boot.INI in XP please.

Just use Notepad as you would edit any other .txt file.
