Re: No letter assignment to my hard drive

Source:
http://www.tech−archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2007−04/msg08276.html

- From: "Rock" <Rock@xxxxxxxxxx>
- Date: Mon, 30 Apr 2007 11:46:28 −0700

"YBeaupre" <YBeaupre@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:E02D8ECD−4F65−4A0A−AEC7−03C119D5A917@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

> Hi,
>
> I have reinstall Windows XP SP2 and my second hard drive isn t > recognized/detected by Windows. This drive is used for storing data. Note > that if I install this drive on another computer running XP, it is detected > and recognized by the other computer and all my data is usable.
>
> However, despite the fact Windows Explorer can t detect my second hard > drive, I can view it when I use the Disk Management Tool. All the properties > of my C drive are present and its STATUS shows: Healthy (System); my second > drive has no letter assigned beside its icon, and its STATUS display: Healthy > (Active). Both drive use NTFS.
>
> What can I do to access my second hard drive without repartitioning it and > losing all my data?

Right click on it in Disk Management and assign a drive letter.

−−
Rock [MS−MVP User/Shell]

.