Last night I was able to select at login among 3 different user accounts.
Today I have no choice, it comes up as only one, and when I go into control panel to switch, I get a message that Client Services for NetWare has disabled the Welcome screen and fast user switching and that I must uninstall client services. Isn't NetWare a Novell program (which I do not have) or is it something in Windows that I can't find ?

Thanks

You should be able to turn back on the welcome screen and fast switching by going to Control > User Accounts
Then click on Change the way users log on or off.
You should see the two things there.
