

Re: Email Info Request

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2007-07/msg04855.html>

- From: "PA Bear" <PABearMVP@xxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Thu, 19 Jul 2007 16:03:13 -0400
-

...Obviously
there is something that was downloaded with that update (that I uninstalled) that is still affecting the performance of some programs on my system.

I very much doubt it, Linda. Tens of millions of users have all critical updates installed and are NOT having the problems you are.

Best of luck.

—

~PA Bear

my_realtor wrote:

Since the help from the newsgroup specializing in Outlook Express had exhausted all suggestions to get my OE up an running again properly I gave up bothering them and taking up their precious time. The did try extremely hard to solve my problem and I do appreciate all of their efforts. When learning that there are other email programs I thought I would see if anyone knew if Incredmail was a good program or not. I now know that it isn't. I don't download and install anything without first getting the opinion form one of these newsgroups beforehand. I know I can count on getting accurate information from one of these sources. I really don't think there is any hope for getting my OE to work properly again. Obviously there is something that was downloaded with that update (that I uninstalled) that is still affecting the performance of some programs on my system. I appreciate the encouragment.

You had /numerous/ threads in microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6_outlookexpress newsgroup earlier this year:

http://groups.google.com/group/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6_outlookexpress/search?q=

I recommend continuing to seek assistance in that, OE-specific newsgroup, Linda.

Re: Email Info Request

I would /strongly/ recommend eliminating Incredimail from the equation, at least temporarily, and see if you can get OE working directly with your mailservers. Good luck.

--

~Robear Dyer (PA Bear)
MS MVP–Windows (IE, OE, Security, Shell/User)
AumHa VSOP & Admin; DTS–L.org

my_realtor wrote:

Does anyone know anything about Incredimail and if it works with Windows XP?
For about a year now I've been trying to get the full use of my Outlook Express program without success. I've done everything anyone as been able to suggest as well as follow all recommendation in the database pages. So many people replied to my request for help in the Outlook Express newsgroup that most eventually gave up. There was on gentelman who stayed with me for months with us trying everything as well as uninstalling the program and reinstalling it. Eventually I was able to get it to the point where it would send messages but I can not receive my messages. I didn't have time to keep devoting to that problem and still, once in a while, work on it. I'm now tired of fighting with it. Microsoft says it's a problem with my provider and my provider says it's a problem with the program. I give up. I need to have an email program that will be able to do both receive and send my messages so I have a way to get them off of the space my provider allows me.
If anyone knows if this Incredimail is a good program or knows of a good email program please let me know. I am a big user of stationery so I would want that capability, if possible.

Re: Email Info Request

Thanks. Linda