Hi,

I was cleaning up my temporary internet files today and I managed to delete everything except a few cookies.

Later, I was opening up an attachment from my MS outlook (2003) and saw that it was being temporarily opened from a sub-folder "OLK6" within temporary internet files folder (checked using save as feature). But, when I navigated to temporary internet files folder I couldnt see any "OLK6" folder.

It was surprising because I have hidden folder view turned on.

Then, I manually typed in the address of OLK in IE and strangely could get in to the desired location.

So why doesnt the Temporary Internet Files folder display OLK6 by default?
