

usb warning "this device could perform faster" showing up... sometimes.

usb warning "this device could perform faster" showing up... sometimes.

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2008-05/msg07718.html>

- From: Nicolas Richard <theonewiththeevillook@xxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sun, 25 May 2008 19:57:17 +0200
-

Hello,

I hope someone can help me about the following problem : when I connect my USB memory stick (Kingston Datatraveler, model DTI/1Gb), I get most of the time the warning "this device could perform faster" and the speed is not good, as being warned. But if I remove the stick, then put it back a few times, the warning will eventually not come back. I cannot figure out how and why the problem disappears, but when the message doesn't show up anymore the speed gets better.

Some details:

- this happens on two computers, both running Win XP (this one is Win XP home edition SP2, the other computer I think runs Win XP professional edition but I'm unsure).
- I did not try on another machine, and didn't try another stick on these computers.
- sometimes I do nothing but disconnect/reconnect the stick, and the warning disappears.
- if I reboot or hibernate the computer, the warning comes back when I reconnect my stick ; and I have to disconnect/reconnect again for some time before the warning goes away.

I appreciate any help and suggestion !

--

Nico.

.