Keys and entries created under Startupreg or Startupfolder depending on where the application had been started from, the Run key or the Start Menu.

HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\SOFTWARE\Microsoft\Shared Tools\MSConfig\startupreg
HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\SOFTWARE\Microsoft\Shared Tools\MSConfig\startupfolder

Yes there is a way to get rid of them. Doing the following will do it but make sure that when deleting you delete the correct item

Regedit\HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\SOFTWARE\Microsoft\Shared Tools\MSConfig\Startupreg and highlight and delete the unwanted entries

Thanks, Peter...
Still didn't get them all, especially the mystery blank command one.

I am running XP SP3.

Is was looking at msconfig as I was annoyed by a few startup items such as

Adobe updater, etc.

I unchecked the boxes, rebooted and everything is OK.

But I have a few startup commands that I have unchecked which are still there even when I uninstalled the associated programs, as well as one with

blank command column.

Is there any way to get rid of these unchecked startup entries so I don't have to look at them anymore?

Thank you!
