I have a legal copy of Windows XP Home Edition. I had to wipe out my computer. However, when I go to install Windows it gets to 90% done and then gives me error the file cannot be copied and that this is not a valid image of Windows or if using a CD there is a problem with your CD. I can press ESC to get passed it and sometimes it will copy the next file but then I will get the error again on another file. I am assuming my CD is bad. I have the receipt and License. I just need another copy of the operating system. Is there anywhere I can download this so I can burn it to another CD?

Get yourself a Bit Torrent client:

And then don't forget to get several anti-malware utilities to clean up any and all files obtained from such a highly suspect source.
