The problem here is that your post is not clear about what your real problem is. Your statement "there is nothing plugged into the usb ports, they have their own ports..." makes no sense. Your statement "i go into the device manager, and nothing shows up "universal serial bus controller" or anything like that" also makes no sense.

So what is the problem? Do the USB ports on your system work? Is the installation of the operating system stable and working? Is the operating system currently installed the one you want, or not?
