

Re: Windows XP Pro, Problems with Yahoo Geocities and more

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.help_and_support/2004-03/8670.html

From: Bee (in.my.bonnet_at_Shangri-La.com)

Date: 03/22/04

Date: Mon, 22 Mar 2004 00:52:53 -0000

Type ICF into the textbox of Find on top Lt corner of the Help and Support page. The first item under Pick A Task is Enable or Disable Internet Connection Firewall. Click that and you will find all the information in the Rt pane. (For explanation of To open the Internet Connection, read the Notes halfway down the pane.)

If you are still lost, go back to Yahoo. They are pretty good at this sort of questions. Or, of course, come back here!

Bee.

```
--
[I have found my Shangri-La in ntlworld.]
--
"Mandi" <anonymous@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message news:E554C527-C7C2-4A75-A4C1-F019E3404697@microsoft.com...
> I am also having this problem :( please help!
>
> mandi
>
>
> ----- Shawn M. Lynch wrote: -----
>
> Please help me,
>
> Since I installed Windows XP Pro(had Windows 2000 before)
> I have not been able to launch the Yahoo Geocities page > builder(Java)tool and work on my website. I also noticed > that I can not launch the insert address link in my Yahoo > e-mail account. I have to go to my e-mail address page and > select the recipients that way. I am on Comcast high speed > cable internet. I am using a cable modem(of course)and a > Siemens SpeedStream router(I have a roommate with a > computer). I checked with Yahoo and they gave me some > suggestions that did not work. I have looked on this site > and found something that said Windows XP Pro has a built > in "Internet Connection Firewall" or ICF I could shut down > that might be causing my problems. I followed the > directions but could not find anything labeled Internet > Connection Firewall or ICF to shut down. If this is all > that I need to do to solve this problem please walk me microsoft.public.windowsxp.help_and_support: Re: Windows XP Pro, Problems with Yahoo Geocities and more > through step by step directions on how to find it and > disable it. If you can help me, please contact me through > my e-mail address.
```

>
> shawn_m_lynch@yahoo.com
>
> Thanks so much,
>
> Shawn
>