

Re: Re: automatic immediate logout after login problem...

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.help\_and\_support/2004-09/2494.html

---

From: rickstar (UseLinkToEmail_at_WindowsForumz.com)

Date: 09/07/04

Date: 6 Sep 2004 22:05:57 -0400

"roger9" wrote:

> On Wed, 9 Jun 2004 11:26:02 -0700, Brad Collyer
> <anonymous@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote:
>
> >I have just experienced the same problem with my home PC.
> >
> >Your suggestion might provide some additional information as > to the problem except, as Weiss Konrad indicated, NO users can > logon to the system – even in Safe Mode.
> >
> >Every possible solution I can think of requires a logon to > the PC. I think that what is needed is a way to stop the > auto-execution of code at logon (Holding the Shift key during > logon works for disabling the execution of everything in the > Startup folder, but not for things in the registry.)
> >
> >Any other ideas short of re-installing XP?
> >
> >Thanks
> >
> Check this message:
> Windows XP logs on then logs off
> <http://www.mcse.ms/message616432.html>
>
> HTH

this was no help to me. first u need to access a computer you can't login into to network to another machine and second the repair function on an install disk does not fix passwords and loggins. this is yet another virus related xp issue that needs to be dealt with by the company that is supposed to support their product and I cannot seem to find an answer to this growing problem.

I paid good money for a system that I cannot login to and at this point my whole business is at a stand still since many of the file I microsoft.public.windowsxp.help_and_support: Re: Re: automatic immediate logout after login problem...

cannot access due to a simple login issue is costing far more money now than it would be to switch operating systems. some help would be greatly appreciated. This is a growing syndrom of the fear of hackers has created a fear to repair

--

<http://www.WindowsForumz.com/> This article was posted by author's request

Articles individually checked for conformance to usenet standards

Topic URL: <http://www.WindowsForumz.com/Help---Support-automatic-logout-login-problem-ftopic2379>

Visit Topic URL to contact author (reg. req'd). Report abuse: <http://www.WindowsForumz.com/eform>