There are free monitoring applications that will let you see the temp and voltages any time you wish. Many motherboard manufacturers have one available or you could search the web for motherboard monitors.

One such app is Motherboard Monitor. It hasn't been updated since Sept of 2004 but it is a nice little app.

Is there anyway/software that will keep a log of a PC's temperature, without getting any new hard ware? In other words, to be able to look in a log and see what the temps have been for the last 24 hours or more?
