"Cd recording software will cause windows to become unstable" pops up on my computer every time I turn it on but there is no cd recording software on my computer, not even a CD burner. This isn't new, it has been happening for like 2 years and I can't stand it anymore. I didn't take it seriously because there isn't any cd recording software on there. It started after I had installed that type of software but continued after I took it off. My question is, why is it doing this and how do I make it stop? Also, will it really cause windows to become unstable when it's not even on there? Thanks!
