last night my system shut down for no knowen reason and started a reboot got past the splash screen then came up with an error message of winlogin.exe failed click ok to terminate or cancel to debug clicked ok and system rebooted self agine this time i was able to get it to go to boot selction screen and selected safe mode with network support as im on a lan system loaded to the safe mode screedn but it was all black with mouse pointer and safe mode in all 4 of the corners nothing else rebooted system through reset button this time error message came up as startup.exe failed click ok to terminate Im stumped this is my real first xp failer any ideas ???

Try to get back to the Windows XP Startup Menu (boot selection screen) and this time choose the "last known good configuration" option.

To bring up the Startup Menu try tapping the F8 key rapidly during the initial stages of the startup (before the opening Windows XP splash screen appears).

Good luck
