i would really like to switch to another user on my computer but i would have to log off my account in order to do that. on my desktop i have the option to just switch user but on my new laptop i dont have that option. is there any way i can change this so other people will be able to my computer in my family?
please if you could help me that would be amazing thank you

On both computers check in Control Panel – User Accounts for any differences in the settings between them. The desktop probably has "use fast user switching" and the laptop is likely set for "use the Welcome screen".

Good luck
