When I go to Documents and Settings under my name, (administrator), there is a folder called "convert" Upon opening it reads :

"The system cannot find the file specified.

Task is completed with error."

I just did a PC Restore (not sys restore) and when I looked I did not see that folder; however, after doing all of my updates, (windows, java, drivers, etc.), I again see this file.

I finally did a little research to see where this file comes from and it seems to be "Converted user profiles folders under C:\Parsing template C:\WINDOWS\inf\deflwk.inf," then I see

"Warning 2: The system cannot find the file specified."

Warning 2: The system cannot find the file specified.

Error setting security on c:\windows\inf\usermig.inf.

Error setting security on c:\ntbootdd.sys."

Btw, the date and time is the day and approximate time that I hooked my puter up!

I looked further on this file and see that several other files are missing but with a different error message— "Warning 2: The system cannot find the file specified.

Error setting security on c:\windows\inf\atiintaa.inf."

"Warning 2: The system cannot find the file specified.

Error setting security on c:\windows\inf\avmisd64.inf."

My computer has been rather sluggish from the get go and now wonder if it is not this error(s).

Since this file does not show itself upon doing a PC Restore I would like to keep that partition in case of the need to bring my puter to out of box state if necessary.

Any assistance is greatly appreciated. I am disabled and the computer is what keeps me busy and is my primary contact with people.

Thanking you -- I remain --
Very truly yours,
'Maramarz'
