Im working with a small town police station. They brought me 9 working laptops that were bought from the local troop of State Patrol. These laptops were formatted when sold to them but the coa license is still stuck on the back.

I have always used my own cd and used there coa's in the past for other customers but they are concerned about being legit. Is this ok? Panasonic wants all kinds of info and paperwork to get replacements. Microsoft may be able to sell me replacements for $30. I dont think we need nothing I always have used the sticker license. Any thoughts or experience?
