I'm running Windows XP and have had the same problem with the power meter and sound icons disappearing from the task bar. I read somewhere to try logging off my user and logging back on then to restart the system. I logged off my user and logged back on and wahlah! it was fixed! I don't know if this will work for everyone, i didn't need to restart my computer though. I got a few messages saying my system recovered from a serious error after logging off and back on. I'm always logged on to my user name and there's no other users on my computer. So try that fix perhaps it will work for you!

1. Log off your user name
2. Log back on
(if it is not fixed)
3. Restart the computer
