Hi

Something strange keeps happening to my PC.

I have XP Pro installed, set up as a workgroup rather than a domain, and normally have the windows welcome screen and graphical logon appear.

Suddenly, after running windows update last week, this changed to the the 'classical' logon prompt, and my welcome screen had vanished! Even though in control panel it still said use the welcome screen. Toggling this off and back on made no difference.

The only way I could get rid back was to restore from a ghost backup, but then I started getting a few other glitches, so decided to do a clean install on a new partition.

I installed XP, SP2, ran windows update, and everything was fine.

I then started installing some programs, (Divx and Alcohol 120%) and after a reboot, the welcome screen had disappeared again !!!!

Any suggestions on how to get this back would be most welcome.

Thanks
