I have moved the display settings to the right far enough that the screen no longer is readable—how do I get the settings back to normal when unable to read the screen to adjust the settings back to a larger display?

What do you mean by display options? is your monitor not working right. If you right click in the middle of you desktop and go to properties and the click on the settings tab you should be given options. On my computer i have a drop down list under Display that lets me choose a default monitor. you can also play with the settings to see if you can get your monitor to work correctly. tell me more if i missed your question
