

Re: can ping but cannot browse

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.network\_web/2004-06/1342.html

---

From: RPM (rpm_at_yahoo.com)

Date: 06/09/04

Date: Wed, 09 Jun 2004 01:14:01 GMT

There are other computers on the network that can access web pages without any problems. FYI.

-rpm

"RPM" <rpmfantasy@yahoo.com> wrote in message news:5c2aa42a.0406080755.3ae6a11d@posting.google.com...
> *I am running a windows xp home computer on a DSL line through a > linksys wireless router. This computer is hard-wired to the router.
>
> From the computer, I can ping the router's ip, I can ping hosts like > www.yahoo.com but I cannot browse to any webpage using IE, Mozilla or > Opera. Rather than just the 'page not found' message, there is > actually a dialog box that pops up first saying that the page was not > found, followed by the actual error page.
>
> When I enter something like www.yahoo.com in the browser, I can see at > the bottom that it gets resolved to its IP address, but after that, it > fails.
>
> Any idea on what could be the problem? Any help is appreciated.
>
> -rpm*