

RE: SP2 +dropped IP connection

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.network_web/2004-11/1080.html

From: Gert (Gert_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 11/10/04

Date: Wed, 10 Nov 2004 07:24:03 -0800

Nick, I have experienced the same problem except that my timeout parameter seems to be 20 minutes. Whether I use Client Access 5250 emulator or a simple telnet session from the command line the AS/400 closes the connection after 20 minutes of idle time. I have sent a posting to the group about it.

Regards from Gert

"Artco_Nick" wrote:

- > We have recently upgraded several hundred of our XP computers to SP2. After
- > doing so we have seen two applications that seem to be experiencing problems.
- > It is like they are somehow dropping their IP connection after a certain
- > period of idle time. One program is a simple TCP/IP connection to an AS/400.
- > If they let their computer sit idle for about 10 minutes then it bumps them
- > back to a login screen on their 400 session. But it is not being initiated
- > by the AS/400. It only occurs on computers that have been upgraded to SP2.
- > The same type of problem is occurring in our other application. After they
- > sit idle and then try to start again the program gives them an error about no
- > database connection. Any help would be appreciated.
- >
- > Nick Bissette
- > nickbissette@hotmail.com