

RE: DNS Problem

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.network_web/2004-12/2436.html

From: Santhana (Santhana_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 12/23/04

Date: Thu, 23 Dec 2004 01:19:06 -0800

Nope ! I'm not having any dedicated IP from the ISP. And I'm using a Static IP in my home.

Regards
Santhana

"serge calderara" wrote:

> Hi santana,
>
> I guess that when you are using your laptop inside your company , it ios > comfigure to use your internal DHCP and DNS server.
>
> When you are at home and you dial up to your ISP, you need to set proper IP > settings for your provider.
>
> As yo can work with both (inside LAN and Homne), you need to configure your > IP configuration to use the Alternate Ip connfiguration.
> For that right click on your dialup connection and select properties, then > select your TCP/IP protocol and properties, then go to Alternate > configuration tab and enter all IP , subnet mask and DNS information from > your provider
>
> Regards
>
> Serge
> MCP
>
> "Santhana" wrote:
>
>> Hi
>> I work on a Laptop. When I'm working in my company, i use the LAN to access >> the internet and when i'm at home I use the DIAL Connectivity to access the >> internet.
>> I dont have any problem when I'm using the LAN. But when I connect to the >> DIALUP , I'm getting connected to the internet but the name resolving is not >> happening...When I try with NSlookup,, It is trying to reach LAN DNS instead microsoft.public.windowsxp.network_web: RE: DNS Problem > > of ISP's DNS.

> > Even after disabling the LAN,,Same issue persists.
> >
> > Please let me know ,how i can resolve this issue.
> >
> > Regards
> > Santhana