

2000pro – xp pro network

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.network_web/2004-12/2629.html

From: plights (plights_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 12/26/04

Date: Sat, 25 Dec 2004 16:01:01 -0800

I have a simple network with a lan cable between the computers. The 2000 computer can access the XP files, but when clicking on the 2000 name iunder Microsoft Windows Network I get the message "...is not accessible: you might not have permission to use this network resource. Contact the administrator of this server.... Logon failure: the user has not been granted the requested logon type at this computer. "

Shat should I do and to which machine?

I saw. here, a link to a step by step guide to establishing a network in XP, but I lost the bookmark. What, where?