I have three computers two with win XP home edition and one Win 98 (desk tops) on a wired network. The network is working fine I can transfer files to all computers. But one of my XP computers canâ€™t be seen on the other XP network places unless I go to select view network groups. Even if I transfer files I have to go to view network groups and select the computer then I see the shared files.

The one XP that canâ€™t be seen it can see the other two computers fine. I have checked the sharing settings and they are all the same as the one XP that can be seen.

Does anyone have any suggestions to correct this?

Thanks

Mark
