What client did you install?

"Client for Microsoft Networks" shouldn't cause a network sign-on window. If you installed "Client Service for NetWare", un-install it, because it isn't needed.

Have you created more than one user account? If so, it's normal to have a sign-on window, but it shouldn't say anything about a network.

This is a Windows XP computer, isn't it? Windows 95/98/Me work differently.

If those suggestions don't help, please reply to this message in the news group (not by E-mail) with more information to help other people understand the problem.

1. What do you mean by "Server setup"? What tells you that your computer is a server?
2. What is the complete and exact text of the sign-on window?

for everyone to see. I'm sorry, but I don't answer questions addressed directly to me in E-mail or news groups.
