If the target machine is Windows XP or W2003 server you can use remote desktop. and the software to do so is included in those operating systems but can be added to anything from 98 up by simply copying two small files from an XP machine to the system32 folder

I don't trust any company who wants to get money from me for such a critical remote service.

I could imagine that there is a service similar to Gotomypc but free of charge.

Does someone know such a software ?
