

File and printer Sharing in Windows 2000 with no domain

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.network_web/2006-11/msg00254.html

- From: re.mendigo@xxxxxxxxxx
 - Date: 8 Nov 2006 10:08:09 -0800
-

I'm curious for the correct way of setting up my home network with the ability to access our Windows 2000 Server Edition server. Currently I have one username set up for everybody in the family to use to connect to the server. It worked for me for a while but nobody else in the family could access it. Recently it stopped working for me as well. When you try to connect, it asks for username and password which I give it, but the prompt just flashes once and then goes back and asks for a password again. All of the computers connecting to it use Windows XP Pro.

.