

Safe Mode wont' load HELP!

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.newusers/2004-04/1385.html>

From: luvwknd (luvwknd_at_hotmail.com)

Date: 04/18/04

Date: Sat, 17 Apr 2004 20:52:18 -0700

power up and enter the BIOS, set boot sequence to CD-ROM drive first and reboot with the XP disk in the CD drive. When prompted to "Press any key to boot from CD" press a key. When the system comes up to a setup menu one of the options will be to repair Windows XP using the repair console, select this option. Select the keyboard driver for your locale and then select the windows option listed, typically it will be 1:\Windows XP Home/Professional; enter the administrator password or simply press enter if there is none. You should now be at a C:\Windows or Windows\System prompt – type "chkdsk /r" without the quotes and the check disk utility will run and repair any problems it finds, hopefully. Sometimes you might receive a message about unrepairable errors detected on disk. Then it's a entirely new ball game.

good luck

>-----Original Message-----

>When I try to start safe mode all the drivers and system start but thats as far as it goes. I'm trying to get into admin so I can boot from my cd to CHKDSK/f so I dan defrag my pc is starting to run really slow. THANKS FOR ANY HELP! Dakart

>

>