What are you calling "funny characters"? Would the happen to be one of the Japanese Alphabets? Did you download and install the Japanese Text Display components for your browser?

I currently run with an English OS with Windows XP SP2. When I view Japanese websites or try to download programs from their sites, almost all the information turns to funny characters..... can anyone explain this to me in plain non-technical terms? Also, what do I have to do the above? Thank you for any input.
