We had this trouble when we installed some new hardware that evidently needed a new driver to be compatible. Since we installed both a new printer and scanner at the same time, we had to uninstall both hardware pieces and go to the internet to search for updated/compatible drivers. If you have installed anything new recently, this could be your trouble. If you are running windows xp and have created restore points, you could go back to one before any changes were made and see if it continues. Ours did and we ended up reinstalling windows.
