If Lexmark does not have a driver or a general driver for Vista, then you are out of luck! This is one reason that Vista is not popular since 97% of hardware will need to be thrown out.

I have a lexmark x5150 printer installed on a XP Home desktop. I have the printer shared. I can connect with a XP Pro laptop and print. I cannot connect with a Vista Premium laptop. I checked the additional drivers section under the printer sharing tab and it does not list any vista drivers. What is the best way to get through this?
