

Re: dual boot configuration, shared application question

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.setup_deployment/2004-07/0372.html

From: iain cohn (iaincohn_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 07/05/04

Date: Mon, 5 Jul 2004 03:36:02 -0700

thanks

"Pegasus (MVP)" wrote:

>
> "iain cohn" <iaincohn@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message
> news:B7FE4112-F513-4AC8-9377-6B4396FEADB5@microsoft.com... > > hi all.
> > I have a new laptop and am thinking of dual booting between xp pro and > > 2k pro, but i want to minimize space used for applications. i am going > > to partition the hd for each operating system and create a third > > partition for the profiles to be stored on so that i can access the > > main profile from each operating system. now for the question.. can i > > install applications like ms office on a fourth partition and have > > both operating systems be able to use it?
> >
> > thaks for your help
> >
> > iain
> >
>
> You can but it is not advisable. You are likely to run into problems > if you have two OSs running the same applications.
>
>
>