I install windows XP and at this time I decided not to allow my kids to have administrator right so I created another account with users right only. Now I have setup word, excel, powerpoint, etc and other program with all my customerization (ie margin, spelling, way I want it to behave. How can i transfer this to their user account without giving them adminisitrator right.

The reason I want to do this is that some program state it has not been located in the registry and fail to open. Installing them when they log on still do not help.
