

How to transfer Dialup Connections to new XP-pro laptop?

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.setup_deployment/2005-11/msg00254.htm

- From: Bo Berglund <boberglund@xxxxxxx>
 - Date: Tue, 15 Nov 2005 18:37:43 +0100
-

I am moving into a new laptop that has XP Pro SP2 on it. My old laptop (also XP-Pro SP2) is still available and it contains zillions of stuff...

Most of the interesting things are now moved by copying the appropriate items from one PC to the other. But one thing is really bugging me and this is the I transfer of all of my 93 dialup entries with all settings intact...

I have googled for hours but only found useless advice such as exporting a registry key to get the settings. Well, the registry key suggested did not even contain the dialup entries...

The Files and Settings Transfer Wizard does not have an item for dialup transfer so that is out too...

When I moved last then I had an NT4 or possibly W2000 rasphone.pbk file that contained all of these items, but it looks like XP keeps dialups in a different way. Where???

Is there really no way to move these connection items over???

Bo Berglund
bo.berglund\(at\)nospam.telia.comnospam.telia.com)

- Follow-Ups:
 - ◆ Re: How to transfer Dialup Connections to new XP-pro laptop?
 - ◇ From: Timothy Daniels
- Prev by Date: Re: What is the easiest way to upgrade hard drive?
- Next by Date: Re: Reactivation Question
- Previous by thread: Re: What is the easiest way to upgrade hard drive?
- Next by thread: Re: How to transfer Dialup Connections to new XP-pro laptop?

How to transfer Dialup Connections to new XP-pro laptop?

- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread