

Re: administrator

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.setup_deployment/2007-04/msg00241.htm

- From: "Stewart" <twoduncans@xxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sat, 21 Apr 2007 18:12:24 +0100
-

Shenan, thank you for the reply but while I have set up myself as administrator and user by replacing my son's name with mine I still find that there are some files and folders in his name (such as I mentioned). I cannot see how I can delete his name when he is no longer an administrator or user.

Do you know how?

Thank you.

"Shenan Stanley" <newshelper@xxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message <news:%23FMCvFDhHHA.3852@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>

Stewart wrote:

My son has given me his laptop with windowsxp installed and I have successfully installed my own data etc; however I have a problem with removing his name and some of his data.

I am now logged as the administrator and/or only user but I still find that there is a file called "C:\Documents and Settings\my son's name\Local Settings\Application Data\MigWiz" and also "C:\Documents and Settings\my son's name\Application Data\Microsoft\Internet Explorer".

I want to change these from my son's name to my name but changing the administrator has not done this. I do not see why there should be anything in the C drive with my son's name.

There are other files but these will give an example.

Can anyone help me clear this up?

If I am in the wrong newsgroup please excuse and maybe redirect me.

Thank you.

Create your own user.

Once you have everything on the new user – it setup looking like you wish and with all the files you want and such – remove your son's account.

In general – if you get an used machine – it's best to start from scratch so you know everything that is on there.

Re: administrator

--

Shenan Stanley
MS-MVP

--

How To Ask Questions The Smart Way
<http://www.catb.org/~esr/faqs/smart-questions.html>