thanks john
good to hear from you hope this finds you well too

And did you disable the associated entries in the Services branch of the proper Control Set?

I would if i could but xp pro is not up & running I'm on hd1 win2000 pro sp4 at this time, i can only copy/rename/edit files on hd2 from win2000 sp4 hd1 cheers o'l boy and ... eat local organic no, bsod is only that, no driver name, no such luck, no such soft 'developers'

I tried to remove some usual driver suspects, just for

Re: no boot !!!! xp sp2 auto update install the pleasure of rebooting

How did you "remove" those drivers, with a PE disk or...?

hd1: winpro 2000 sp4 ok hd2: xp sp1 ok --> sp2 auto update, not doing so well boot on hd1, ren ...\drivers on hd2

And did you disable the associated entries in the Services branch of the proper Control Set?
