

Re: Please Help

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.video/2005-09/msg00226.html>

- From: "Cari \ (MS-MVP)" <Newsgroups1@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Fri, 16 Sep 2005 10:50:31 -0700
-

Do you remember at what point it failed? Any % value?

Things a PC NEEDS to be able to POST....

Motherboard, CPU (heatsink and fan please!!!), graphics card, monitor and RAM – oh and strangely enough, a PSU (power supply unit)

Does it POST?

—
Cari (MS-MVP)
Printing & Imaging

"simonbrock" <simonbrock.1vg91r@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:simonbrock.1vg91r@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

>
> Oh im a bit stumped at the moment, I Had a system running XP Home > Edition that worked perfectly fine until 3 weeks ago when it suddenly > stopped working, so much so that i was even unable to install windows > again because it froze at the same point everytime. So assuming that a > piece of hardware had failed or sumfink i decided to take all my > hardware out and strat from scratch, i removed my dvd drive, floppy > drive, 1 stick of ram, sound card, network card, internal modem and my > wireless network card to see if it was them causing a problem but still > couldnt get windows to load or reinstall.
> This has been eating away at me for too long now and the only options > that are left are, dodgy processor, motherboard fault, bios fault or > battery fault?? Any ideas and i would really appreciate them, thanks
>
>
> --
> simonbrock

- References:

- ◆ Please Help

- ◇ From: simonbrock

- Prev by Date: Re: Help uploading WMV files?

- Next by Date: Re: the saved video halts

- Previous by thread: Please Help

- Next by thread: Please Help

- Index(es):

- ◆ Date

- ◆ Thread