I have used remote desktop successfully on my laptop for about 1 year. I tried to set up a home network to share resources with my desktop. I didn't get that working. I don't care about that now because I lost my ability to access my work computer. Causing me big problems! I can connect to the VPN then when I type my computer name it says that "the specified remote computer could not be found, verify that you have typed the correct computer name or ip address" The computer name is correct and other can access my office computer so I know it is not on that end. Any ideas?
