

microsoft.public.windows.group_policy: Re: Setting a Hexidecimal Value in .adm files

Re: Setting a Hexidecimal Value in .adm files

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.group_policy/2004-03/0470.html

From: Derek Melber [MVP] (derekm_at_braincore.net)

Date: 03/20/04

Date: Sat, 20 Mar 2004 11:32:53 -0700

There is not much on this in the industry. See if this can help you.

<http://www.terranovum.com/docs/energystar/WindowsPMWhitePaper-v4rev{2}.pdf>

--

Derek Melber
BrainCore.Net

derekm@braincore.net

"Robert" <anonymous@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message news:1071601c40e30$8e7c33e0$a301280a@phx.gbl...

> Hello all,

> I have written an administrative template to select > which power scheme is used on a clients computer and it > works to set which scheme is used. Although it seems > that on the users computers it changes the scheme used > but keeps a 15 minute value in the system standby field > instead of leaving it at never (which is what it should > be for the set scheme). I am thinking that the only way > to resolve this problem is to set the policies for the > scheme, but the registry key defining these policies is > in hexidecimal and the data is quite long. How can you > modify this in an administrative template or can you?

>

> Thanks for any help,

> Robert